The Boy and the Wolf

Once upon a time there was a young boy who looked after the sheep in his village. He didn't like looking after the sheep because he stayed on his own on the hill and it was very boring. He looked at the village and he said to himself, 'The people in the village are all together there and can talk, and I'm all alone here. I want to have some fun.'

Then he thought, 'I know how to have some fun!' And he shouted, 'Wolf! Wolf! Help! The wolf is taking the sheep!'

The villagers were very busy but they came running up the hill to find the boy and help him, 'Where is the wolf?' they said. But the boy only laughed. 'There is no wolf, I only wanted to laugh,' said the boy, and the villagers were very angry.

The next day the boy was bored again. 'I want to have some fun,' he said to himself and he shouted, 'Wolf! Wolf! He's taking our sheep! Come and help me!' And the villagers came running but they were very angry when they saw there was no wolf, and they told him to stop being silly.

That night, the boy was all alone on the hill and he suddenly saw two eyes in the darkness. It was the wolf! He shouted and shouted for help but the villagers didn't come. The next day he went down to the village and said, 'The wolf took all our sheep, why didn't you come to help me?' And the villagers said, 'Because no one believes a liar.' He felt very bad and he didn't lie again.
